Footnote:
(1) "Maximum effort"? Consider how it is explained in the movie "Twelve O'Clock High" directed by Henry King (1949).
"The film is now widely used in both the military and civilian worlds to teach the principles of leadership. It is required viewing at all the American service academies, and at the U.S. Air Force's Squadron Officer School for junior officers, where it is used as a teaching example for the Situational Leadership Model."
